grew out the disbarment proceedings brought against Attorney Ernest O'Brien of Rutland states that upon all the evi dence produced before it, the committee is fully satisfied that the written instrument (the alleged Vermont Marble com pany document), is not a genuine in strument, but a forgery, but from the evidence before it it is unable to find exactly when or where the instrument was forged.

Considering the motives which it finds he had to do so, and from all the evidence in the case, it finds that George P. Eastman forged or caused to be some time not earlier than the year days' meeting. 1916,

In regard to the meeting between O'Brien and said Eastman at Stanwix 1917, the commission finds as follows: O'Brien went to Albany, N. Y., and here met said Eastman at the Stanwix Hall hotel, where Eastman was registered under the alias "G. L. Brown, Boston," and assigned to room 63, to which room O'Brien was also assigned upon his O'Brien returned to Rutland the folowing day (Sunday, May 6, 1917) and at about noon of that day, delivered to W. S. Fenton (Eastman's attorney) plaintiff exhibit No. 1 (the alleged forged document), and that O'Brien did not find the document in the old files of Joel C.

It finds that said written instrumen came into O'Brien's possession through some arrangement and understanding between him and Eastman, and that their meeting in Albany on this occur or had to do with the instrument, its sup posed discovery and its delivery to Mr

Fenton on the following day. The commission does not find that O'Brien knowingly had any part in forging or conspiring with said Eastman to forge said written instrument, but it does find that O'Brien did conspire with sald Eastman to utter the same, that O'Brien on May 5, 1917, and at all times thereafter knew that it was not a genuine instrument, as it purported to be; that the testimony of O'Brien and Eastman was false and was knowingly giv-
